The Company That Solved Health Care. The health care crisis in the U.S. has reached epidemic proportions. Companies face skyrocketing costs to insure their workers, and individuals face higher premiums, bigger co-pays, or, in the case of more than 40 percent of all Americans, the inability to afford any insurance at all. In the midst of the struggle, one mid-sized Midwestern company, led by a former Marine deeply concerned about the care of his co-workers, waged war on health care costs and won.
